Thanks, Jim!

The week of May 15th looks pretty good for me Wednesday AM (Pacific) and all day Thursday or Friday. From the looks of their calendars, Karl could join us most of those times and Royden may be otherwise occupied. I don't have access to Todd or Jason's calendars. How do those days look to you, Todd/Jason?

Cheers,

Heath Packard

Hi Heath:

Great to hear from you. And yes, of course, very pleased to set up a call when i get back to Atlanta in the 2nd week of May. Let me know if there are any days/times that work particularly well for you and I'll do my best to accommodate.

Re. publications, i'll have to dig a bit for any gene-drive-specific social engagement references. I'm working on a couple of papers on this at the moment, but they're no where near ready to share. In the meantime, the closest i have is a retrospective case study we did for the Eliminate Dengue folks for their Wolbachia mosquito trials in norther australia, a much older paper that emanated from some work we did in preparation for caged field trials of GM mosquitoes in Mexico, and a separate paper re. some of the site selection considerations we worked through in preparation for selecting the site in Mexico. My thinking has evolved quite dramatically since then, but it will at least show you where we started

Hope that's modestly helpful, at least to get the ball rolling.

Best wishes and really looking forward to being in touch
jim

Hi Jim,

I think we might benefit from connecting sometime. Would you be willing to schedule a call to get acquainted with me and a couple of my colleagues in May?

In the meantime, could you send along any publications you have on gene drive research social engagement?

Thanks!

Heath, just reviewing some old emails trying to get my life back under control and came across this. It looks like I might not have responded to you??

If not, my sincere apologies.

I just wanted to check in to see if there's anything i can do that would still be relevant for you.

Best wishes

Jim

Hi Jim,

It's a pleasure to meet you. I'd be delighted to learn from your engagement experiences. Do you have something you can send along? Perhaps time for a short call to get acquainted? Thanks for letting me know.

Thanks for making the connection, Fil!

Heath and Jim,

I would like to introduce you to each other. Jim, as I mentioned, Heath is with Island Conservation.

<https://www.islandconservation.org/>

Heath, as I mentioned, Jim is a BMGF grantee working on community engagement.

http://www.news.emory.edu/stories/2016/07/SOPH_hilton_chair_Lavery/index.html Perhaps Jim can send you some of his papers on the subject as well.

Best,
Fil
